HEMEROCALLIS

(Daylilies)

In our many years of experience in growing plants of all kinds we find that daylilies have given us more pleasure for our money with less care than any other plants we have ever known. The wide color scheme, the long period of blooming by growing different varieties, the fact that they're almost disease free, all these favorable points tend to make daylilies our favorite plant. Fertilizing is not a must but as with most plants, produces better results. A well aerated soil, rich in humus with a good dressing of barnyard manure will pay big dividends. Here in the south mulching is not absolutely necessary, however, it helps keep the moisture in the ground in case of a drouth, as well as keeping weeds out. Since daylilies make roots near the surface of the earth cultivation is eliminated, another point in their favor, as well as the fact that they combine so beautifully with so many other plants and are so simple to move. There is so much to be said in their favor that a whole history could be written.

We have been in the general nursery business for approximately 14 years. Being interested in growing plants makes one vulnerable to a growing desire for anything new in that line, especially in plants that are applicable anywhere, in any soil. Hence, our first interest in daylilies. We were first attracted by them as a plant highly desirable in giving the finishing touch to landscaping jobs. Therefore, we started with mass planting of the cheaper varieties. Gradually we acquired better and more expensive varieties. With the help of our good friend Mrs. Dave P. Clark of Baton Rouge, La., a veteran in the daylily field, we were able to steer away from a lot of varieties on the market, and obtain varieties tested and proven, gradually building up a collection any grower should be proud of.

In this price list we offer to you 150 varieties, holding back several wonderful ones for next year until we can build up our stock. In the 5 years that we have grown this wonderful perennial we have bought from several growers in different parts of the United States at different times of the year, and have never lost a plant. We find Daylilies to be the easiest of all plants to grow with the least effort.

We have read in the notes of some of the older members of the Hemerocallis Society that they are like weeds. We quite agree with them, only beauty has been added. Daylilies here in Louisiana usually can be planted 12 months out of the year. However, we get best results by planting during late summer and early fall. Simply make sure you buy from a reliable grower and plant your scone so as to spread the roots in a well pulverized soil with at least 1 inch of packed dirt over the utmost upper roots, water well, and in no time at all you will have a growing plant. Daylilies will grow without care of any kind but will respond wonderfully to care as all plants will. From our observation we find that they grow well in full sun or partial shade. Watering right after separating and transplanting is necessary of course, and watering when forming buds produces more buds and larger blooms. Some of the darker varieties, as well as the dainty pinks do better in partial shade.

We welcome visitors any time. Plan to visit our humble garden several times a year, you will never be disappointed. Since the Hemerocallis Convention will be held in Baton Rouge, La., next year, we hope that many of you can plan your route through Lafayette and look us up. It will be a pleasure to show you around. Our Daylily display and proven ground is located in the yard of Mrs. C. G. Simon, 619 Lafayette Street, in the City of Lafayette. Our growing field is located three miles east of Lafayette on U. S. 90 paved highway to New Orleans, La.

GENERAL NURSERY STOCK

We grow a complete line of Nursery stock, Azaleas, Camellias and Ornamentals. We are in the process of subdividing our Nursery Property bordering on U. S. 90 paved highway. It will be necessary to move several thousand field specimen plants this coming season, and we are therefore, offering these plants at sacrificed prices. Cash and Carry at the Nursery. These plants are heavy, bushy well shaped field grown plants, have been sheered several times, clean, healthy and with right color. Ideal for landscape purposes. If you are looking for quality plants at give away prices, this is your chance. If interested write for price list.
